WASHINGTON, D.C. — SIOR Foundation, a 501(c)(3) not-for-profit organization that solicits and accepts charitable donations for community development and commercial real estate initiatives, has named David Hagan as its new president for the 2016-2017 term.

The announcement was made last week during the Society of Industrial & Office Realtors (SIOR) Fall World Conference in New York City. Hagan is a senior vice president of brokerage services with CBRE's Greensboro, N.C., office.

Hagan will take over the reins of SIOR Foundation from previous president Patricia Loveall, a partner and director of Kidder Matthews in the Seattle/Puget Sound metro area. Other top-tier positions at SIOR Foundation for the 2016-2017 term include president-elect Bill Ginder of Caldwell Cos., vice president Aaron Barnard of NorthMarq Capital and treasurer Stan Kleweno of Transpacific Investments.

SIOR Foundation's mission is to promote and support initiatives that educate, expand and enhance the U.S. commercial real estate community.

The Washington, D.C.-based organization plans to award grants totaling $162,000 for fiscal year 2017, which runs from Sept. 1 to Aug. 31. The foundation's charitable giving supports undergraduate and graduate college students who are in pursuit of academic degrees associated with commercial real estate.
